

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Preface

Since the persons who enroll in the International Correspondence Schools are, as a rule, young men between the ages of 23 and 27 years, and are just beginning their business careers, changes of residence are very common among them. It also very frequently happens that a student changes his address without notifying us for a long time thereafter. Consequently, many of the students mentioned herein have, undoubtedly, different addresses from that on our records at the time this list was prepared (January 18, 1904, to March 17, 1904) or have changed them subsequently. Nevertheless, they lived at the addresses given at some period of time, while pursuing their studies, as can be demonstrated by a call at (or a letter written to) the addresses herein given.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

PERSONAL STATEMENT

Advance sheets of this book have shown apparently many mistakes. Several of our Representatives have stated that they knew personally of students whose names are not in the book, but which ought to be there; also, that some names have not been spelled rightly and that some addresses were wrong. I know personally of at least one student whose address is wrong—the mistake being discovered only after the book was printed. The facts are these: The student removed from the state of New York into the state of New Jersey several years ago, and after his removal he never sent in any work or notified us of the change in his address. Hence, while his name is in the book, it could not be found, unless his former address was known.

We take every possible precaution to keep our files correct in the matter of spelling the students' names, and any errors in this respect are generally due to the students' signatures not being plain. Our Representatives could assist us greatly if they would write the names of all students whose signatures are not plain on the enrolment blank, in such a manner that the names could not be misunderstood. Many thousands of students have become eligible for inclusion in the book since the names were originally taken off, and a supplementary list of such students is now in course of preparation.

A large proportion of our students complete Arithmetic and perhaps one or more of the other preliminary subjects. Having acquired the habit of studying and not desiring to spend the time necessary to write out their answers to the Examination Questions, they stop sending in their work, but still keep up their studies, using for this purpose their bound volumes. Of course, the work of such students does not appear on our records, and their names are not included in this book.

In conclusion, we ask every person who receives a copy of this book to read very carefully the Preface and pages III–XIII, which immediately follow it. If you find any errors in this book, please notify me personally, so that in future editions such errors will not be perpetuated.

Very truly yours,

J. J. CLARK,

THE I.C.S. SYSTEM

of

INSTRUCTION BY MAIL

and the

RESULTS ACHIEVED UNDER IT

OF THE marvelous educational work that has been done by the International Correspondence Schools during the past thirteen years the public in general has no conception. Mere figures, gigantic though they be, are wholly inadequate to express the value of the work that has been accomplished. In response to numerous requests from educators and others as to the results of our system of education by mail, we have compiled this list of students who have done what we regard as satisfactory work. The list includes all graduates and all students who have completed at least one-third or more of their courses. The work involved has been enormous, requiring the careful examination of the records of about 650,000 students, the copying of the records of about 55,000 students; the arrangement of these latter into countries, states, and towns; and the recopying of the whole into a form convenient for the printer. It is scarcely to be supposed that in a work so extensive no errors occur, but every possible precaution has been taken to make the list correct and in accordance with our records at the time the names were taken. The addresses and records of all students here given correspond with those on our files at the time this list was compiled.

Since the 54,500 names appearing here represent only 12.7 per cent. of the number of students who had paid for their Scholarships at the time these names were taken off, it might be thought at first glance that the results of correspondence instruction were, to a certain extent at least, disappointing. Such, however, is not the case, the results being in reality simply astounding, when all the conditions are fully understood. In order to obtain some slight comprehension of the work being done by the I. C. S. from an educational standpoint, the statements contained in the numbered paragraphs which follow must always be taken into consideration:

1. The only requirement demanded of any student in order to enroll in and to complete successfully one of our courses is the ability to read the English language and to express himself well enough in writing for us to understand him.
2. The large majority of our students have little or no knowledge of arithmetic; 96 per cent. or more begin with this subject.
3. Considered with reference to the use to which the knowledge imparted may be put, many of our technical courses may be regarded as a fair equivalent of similar courses offered by the leading technical schools and colleges. Some of the subjects are treated of more extensively than in any other existing treatises, and a large number of our texts have been adopted as textbooks by some of the leading technical schools.
4. The majority of our students have only a limited time in which to study, and a large proportion of them have not had time as yet to do a sufficient amount of studying to warrant us in including them in this list.
5. With the exception of a very small percentage, none of our students have formed the habit of studying; they therefore consume a much longer time in completing their studies than they otherwise would.
6. By far the greater number of our students have no incentive to study beyond the desire to better their condition in life. The ordinary school or college student is encouraged by the example of his classmates, by the desire of his parents for his success, by the limit put on the time required to complete a subject, by the disgrace occasioned through failure to pass, by fear of being reduced to a lower class, etc. The correspondence student has none of these incentives (except the second, in a few cases) to urge him on. He usually has to study at night after a hard day's work, and sometimes under the most adverse conditions. His light is likely to be poor; he may be surrounded by a family of young children; his friends, his relatives, and even his wife may be opposed to his spending his time and money in this manner; and, then, in addition to all this, he has to combat his own natural inclinations to spend his evenings in an easier and a pleasanter manner.

7. For the majority of our courses, and for all of our longer courses, we have what we term Bound Volumes; these are nothing more than the complete texts and drawing plates for each course, bound up in permanent form, and they are delivered to the student as soon as he has made a payment on his course. Many students do not desire to spend the time necessary to write out their answers to the examination questions, and never send us any work; at the same time, they use their volumes to study from, and in many instances write us that they have been greatly benefited by their courses. The work of such students, of course, is never recorded.
8. On account of the fact that our bound volumes are not sold, many students enroll without ever intending to study—they desire the bound volumes for reference. How many of these students there are, and of those who study from their bound volumes, we do not know, but the percentage must be quite large.
9. Our students have an unlimited time in which to complete their courses; we have never suspended or expelled a student. As a consequence, even though a student may not send in any work for years, we still keep him on our rolls and count him as one of our students. We have in mind a case where a student removed and we lost track of him completely for seven years; then he wrote us and stated that he desired to resume his studies at the point where he left off. He also stated that he had been advanced to positions of various responsibilities until he had become superintendent. He had been kept so busy and his hours of work had been so long that he had not been able to continue his studies during the interval. He had finished the subjects of arithmetic and mensuration, and he had found this knowledge of immense value to him in securing his advancements. [This is but one case of thousands, though few wait so long as this.]

10. The large majority of our students enroll for the purpose of obtaining the information contained in what we term the "technical" part of their courses. A great proportion of these students are rendered very impatient by the delay occasioned in studying the elementary (mathematical) part of their courses. As in every school, many of the students detest mathematics and many find great difficulty in understanding it, and for this reason, a large number drop out that would otherwise complete their courses.

A careful consideration of the foregoing will convince any unbiased mind that the results we have achieved are very extraordinary. And when it is further considered that many of our students are foreigners, with only the slightest acquaintance with the English language, and that in many such cases it takes months for a reply to a letter to be received, we think that not only are the results herewith presented astounding, but that we are today one of the very greatest educational forces in the world.

It may not be out of place here to explain the manner in which our Schools are conducted. It should be apparent from what has preceded that the ordinary textbooks used in schools and colleges would not be suitable for purposes of correspondence instruction. Such ~~textbooks~~ cannot be ~~used~~ for this purpose for several reasons, among which are: The majority of them are intended to be studied with the aid of a teacher. They cover a great deal more ground than is necessary for any of the special courses we offer. Again, the ordinary textbooks are usually too theoretical, and they demand too great a knowledge of mathematics and other subjects on the part of a student for us to use them in connection with our system of teaching. For these reasons and others we have prepared our own textbooks, and have adapted them especially to the courses in which they are used. To make it easier for the student when studying them, they have been divided into a large number of small parts, which we issue to the student in pamphlet form, and which we call Instruction Papers.

The Instruction Papers contain on an average about 50 pages each, although many of them have a smaller number of pages than this, and some exceed this considerably. At the end of each Instruction Paper, except in a few cases in which drawing or some allied subject is treated, we print a list of questions under the heading "Examination Questions."

When a student enrolls we send him the first and second Instruction Papers in the order of study, and if he lives a great distance from us we may send him four or five. With these papers we send full directions for studying the paper and for answering the questions at the end of the paper. Every rule and formula is illustrated by one or more examples immediately following it, and whenever possible these examples relate to matters with which the student is supposed to be familiar or to practical matters concerning which the course treats. At frequent intervals, examples for practice are given. The student is directed to study thoroughly the first Instruction Paper, and is advised to work all the examples for practice. If he meets with any difficulty that he cannot overcome, he is urged to write to the Schools for information and assistance. He is requested at the same time to send us his work on the problem as far as he can carry it, so that we can view the matter from his standpoint. We will give him all the assistance we possibly can, and when he has finally completed the study of the paper, and thinks that he understands it, he writes out the answers to the Examination Questions and forwards his work to us for examination and criticism. While this latter is being done the student takes up the second paper, and when we return his work on the first paper we send with it the third paper. By this means the student always has one or more Instruction Papers on hand to study, and he loses no time on account of any delay in the mails. The student proceeds in this manner until he has finished the course. We render him all the assistance that he needs, and even explain questions and problems given under the head of Examination Questions, if requested.

Any student that obtains a mark of 90 per cent. on his work is passed to the next subject. When a student has completed the course in this manner he is sent a list of questions covering the entire course of study; no answers are given to these questions and the student is given no assistance in answering them. We have no fixed percentage for passing the student on the final examination, judging whether or not he ought to be allowed to pass on the general character of his work. If we deem it inadvisable to pass the student we inform him to this effect, and direct him to restudy particularly certain portions of the course, concerning which he is deficient. Later, when we think that he has the necessary knowledge, we send him another set of Examination Questions, and if he answers these satisfactorily, we give him a Diploma or Certificate of Proficiency, as the case may be.

If a student has great difficulty in studying any particular subject in the regular manner, we give his case particular attention. We arrange matters so that his work always goes to the same person for correction and so that this person answers all letters or communications that the student sends us regarding his work. If necessary he is directed to study a few pages of a paper, and then requested to answer certain questions that are sent to him, but which are not included in the paper. He then studies another section of the paper, and answers another set of questions, and so on until he completes the subject. Every possible pains is taken to carry the student through his course, and every encouragement that ingenuity can devise is extended to him.

A few words in regard to the scope of our courses will not be out of place here. Our courses are all prepared from a utilitarian standpoint; that is, it is always kept in view that the reason for the student taking one of our courses is that he desires to put the knowledge obtained into immediate practical use. We are not aiming to train the mind, but to give the student such information regarding the principles, theory, and practice as he can use in connection with the position he is aiming to fill. As a consequence, only so much of any particular subject is given as is necessary to meet the requirements for the course in which the subject is treated. Hence, in some courses the same subject is treated very fully while for other courses the treatment is greatly abbreviated. In all cases we have attempted to cut down the treatment of the mathematical subjects until it covered only so much as was absolutely necessary for the student to know in order to understand the papers that followed. In certain cases, however, the treatment is very full and complete, depending on the purpose for which the paper is intended to be used. For example, the arithmetic used in our School of Commerce covers as much ground as that used in any Business College. Our papers entitled Advanced Algebra cover the subject more extensively than the textbooks generally used in colleges. In preparing our various papers on mechanics we have followed the same general plan as was adopted for our papers on mathematics.

What we term our technical papers may be divided into two classes—those which deal with designing, and those which deal with running and repairing. In either case, the papers are as a rule very thorough and complete. In many cases the subjects are covered more fully, from the standpoint from which they are written, than in any other treatises on the same subjects. In this connection we call attention particularly to our treatment of the subjects of Electric Railways, Interior Wiring, Elevators, our several courses in Shop Practice, etc. It is for this reason, and also because of the simplicity of treatment, that a great many of our students are college graduates, and some of them have taken such of our courses as correspond most nearly with the ones that they pursued at college.

As we previously stated, our textbooks are prepared by the members of our faculty, assisted by writers permanently engaged with us. Frequently, however, the original manuscript is prepared by an expert not connected with us, the work being done under contract. In all such cases the manuscript after being received by us is thoroughly revised, edited, and in some cases rewritten, so as to make it suitable in every way for our courses. Again, our textbooks are subjected to frequent revision; in some instances the entire course is revised, or sometimes wholly rewritten; in other cases only a single paper may be revised or rewritten; but in any case we are greatly assisted in this work by the criticisms of our students, and the difficulties they encounter when studying, as revealed by their work.

How to Use This List

AMES and addresses of the students are arranged in the following manner:

The first column gives the name of the student and the last two figures of the year in which he was enrolled. The second column gives his address, and the third column indicates the course taken and shows the number of subjects and drawing plates he has completed, and also whether he has received a certificate of proficiency or a diploma. In those cases in which there are ten or more students whose names are given on this list in one town or city, the name of the town or city is printed in bold-face type over the second column. It is then followed by the name of the county in small CAPS. When the number of students is less than ten in any one town or city, the name of the town or city in which the student resides is printed first, and is followed by the street and number, if any, and followed again by the name of the county printed in small CAPS. The name of the state or country, in case of foreign countries, is printed at the top of each page, when practicable, and in the case of the Dominion of Canada, it is followed by the name of the province. The cities and towns are then arranged alphabetically according to the states or provinces, and can be readily located as soon as the state or province has been found. The states are also arranged alphabetically.

In explanation of the third column, it may be stated that in order to distinguish our students and to tell in all cases what course each is taking, whether it is a revised course or an old course, etc., we give each student what we call a "class letter."

This class letter is usually limited to one or two letters, but may, in a few cases, consist of three letters. These class letters are the first letters given in the third column, and are followed by abbreviations indicating the number of subjects completed, the number of drawing plates completed, and whether the student has a diploma or certificate of proficiency. • The number of subjects is indicated by the number preceding the letter S. The number of plates is indicated by the number preceding the letter P. If the student has a diploma, the preceding abbreviations are followed by the letter D, and if he has a certificate of proficiency, the letter C is used instead of D. There is really very little difference between our diploma and our certificate of proficiency. The diploma we reserve for the longer and more difficult courses, and the certificate of proficiency is issued to students that have completed single subjects or short courses.

In many cases Instruction Papers are printed in several parts under the same title. In all such cases the subject has been regarded as a single paper, except in a few instances where this was inadvisable. For instance, our course in Retail Advertising is comprised in thirteen papers under the general title of Retail Advertising, and identified as Retail Advertising, Part 1, Part 2, and so on to Retail Advertising, Part 13. For the purpose of this compilation we have assigned a number of new titles to these papers, so as to make the course appear to consist of more than one subject, as it really does. This has also been done in the case of one or two other courses.

In case it is desired to look up the record of any particular student, as, for example, the record of T. F. Whearthy, Bayview, Mass., we look for Massachusetts in its regular alphabetical order. Having found the state, we then find Bayview and the student's name, opposite which is, in the third column, SM, 7S, 15P, D. The letter D, as before stated, signifies that this student has completed his course, but if it is desired to know what subjects are included in the course, refer to the index immediately following this explanation, and look for SM in the left-hand column. It is there seen that SM signifies the Surveying and Mapping Course, and that the list of subjects included in this course is given on page 8.

It will be noticed that the page numbers in this index are printed in Italics, to distinguish them from page numbers in the general list. Referring then to page 8, there will be found under the heading Surveying and Mapping the list of subjects included in the course. The fifteen drawing plates referred to as completed are included in the subjects of Geometrical Drawing and Mapping. Under the list of subjects included in this Course will be found a note stating that Algebra and Logarithms were formerly included in this course. This note was placed here for the reason that some of the students in the Surveying and Mapping Course completed these two subjects and others did not. Hence, while both classes of students received a diploma, one class studied two subjects less than the other class did. In a few cases, it will be noticed that the name of the same student appears twice. This is because he has taken two separate courses. In all cases in which plates are drawn in connection with the study of a subject, the number of plates required to be drawn follows the title of the subject.

In arranging the names of the subjects forming the various courses, these subjects have been placed in the order in which the student usually studies them. In some cases students have been permitted to study subjects outside of the regular order, when this would not interfere with their successfully completing their courses. Some courses have been abolished and others substituted for them. Such courses are placed at the end of the list.

- In a few cases, the class letters printed differ in some respect from the class letters in regular use. It has been necessary to change these letters, for the reason that formerly we sometimes used the same class letter for several courses. For instance, all the courses included in our School of Steam Engineering were originally designated by the class letter H. We have added to this letter one or more other letters so as to identify the course completely.

The list does not include students who take only one subject, as, for example, the subject of arithmetic, or algebra, or spelling, etc.; it also does not include the names of students who have requested us not to make their names and addresses public.

Complete Lettering and Sign Painting—D G; D H; L S; S P
Elements of Lettering Formation of Letters
 Lettering and Sign Painting, 34 P.

Architectural Drawing—D L; D M; U D; L D
Arithmetic] Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.
Formulas Architectural Drawing, 12 P.
Geometry and Mensuration Ornamental Drawing, 6 P.
 Advanced Architectural Drawing, 18 P. (10 Plates optional)

Sheet-Metal Pattern Drafting—D N; D I; Y; Z
Arithmetic* Development of Surfaces, 5 P.
Mensuration* Practical Pattern Problems
Instrumental Drawing, 2 P. Architectural Proportion
Geometrical Drawing, 8 P. Development of Moldings
Practical Projection, 7 P. Skylights

With the adoption of the present order of studies some titles were changed; the subject matter was to a considerable extent rearranged; and new Papers were added, the scope of the Course as a whole being increased.

Mechanical Drawing—D O; D P
Arithmetic Mechanical Drawing, 16 P.
Mensuration Practical Projection, 7 P. (Optional)
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. Development of Surfaces, 5 P (Optional)

Show-Card Writing—D V; D W
Show-Card Writing Letter Formation, 15 P.
 Show-Card Design and Ornament

The second subject given is not counted as a subject; credit is given instead for the Plates drawn.

Electrical Engineering—E W; E A; M E
Arithmetic Strength of Materials
Formulas Applied Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. Steam Boilers
Mechanical Drawing, 16 P. (2 Plates optional) Machine Design
Practical Projection, 7 P. (Optional) Principles of Electricity and Magnetism
Development of Surfaces, 5 P. (Optional) Electrical Measurements
Geometry and Trigonometry Batteries
Elementary Mechanics Applied Electricity
Hydromechanics Electric Transmission
Algebra Electric Lighting
Logarithms Electric Railways
Pneumatics Dynamo-Electric Machine Design
Heat Motor Design
Steam and Steam Engines Theory of Alternating-Current Apparatus
 Design of Alternating-Current Apparatus

Formulas is not sent to students taking Algebra directly after Arithmetic. With the adoption of the present order of studies the titles of some electrical Papers were changed; the subject matter of the electrical Papers was to a considerable extent rearranged; and new Papers were added, the scope of the electrical part of the Course being increased. The option of taking Practical Projection and Development of Surfaces is regularly given to students having class letter E W.

*Printed under the general title of Arithmetic, in 12 parts.

Blacksmithing and Forging

With the adoption of the present order of studies some titles were changed; the subject matter was to a considerable extent rearranged; some Papers formerly presented under a single title and in parts were given separate titles; and new Papers were added the scope of the Course as a whole being increased.

Shop Practice, Machine-Shop Division—M F; M I; C S F

Reading Working Drawings (Optional)	Gear Calculations
Arithmetic	Gear-Cutting
Lathe Work	Grinding
Working Chilled Iron (Optional)	Bench, Vice, and Floor Work
Planer Work	Erecting
Shaper and Slotter Work	Shop Hints
Drilling and Boring	Measuring Instruments
Milling-Machine Work	Precision Measurements

See remarks under Shop Practice Course, on this page.

Shop Practice, Toolmaking Division—M J; C S J

Reading Working Drawings (Optional)	Toolmaking
Arithmetic	Gauges and Gauge Making
Measuring Instruments	Dies and Die Making
Precision Measurements	Jigs and Jig Making
General Tool-Room Work*	Shop Hints (Optional)

See remarks under Shop Practice Course, on this page.

Shop Practice, Patternmaking Division—M K; C S K

Reading Working Drawings (Optional)	Pattern-Shop Equipment†
Arithmetic	Patternmaking
Wood Working	Gear Calculations (Optional)
Wood Turning	Shop Hints (Optional)
	Measuring Instruments

Shop Practice, Blacksmithing and Forging Division—M O; C S O

Reading Working Drawings (Optional)	Blacksmithing and Forging
Arithmetic	Shop Hints (Optional)
Blacksmith-Shop Equipment†	Measuring Instruments

See remarks under Shop Practice Course, page 13.

Shop Practice, Combinations of Two, Three, or Four Divisions

Any combination of two, three, or four of the five divisions of the Shop Practice Course includes the subjects of each division, except that subjects common to the divisions taken are not duplicated. To indicate the divisions taken, the following letters are annexed to the class letters C S or M H: For Machine-Shop Division, F; for Tool-making Division, J; for Patternmaking Division, K; for Foundry-Work Division, N; for Blacksmithing and Forging Division, O.

Farm Machinery—M Q; H T

Arithmetic	Mechanics
Mensuration	Traction and Portable Engines
	Farm Machinery

Gas Engines—M R; H G

Arithmetic	Elementary Mechanics
Mensuration	Pneumatics, Gas, and Petroleum
Elementary Algebra and Trigonometric	Heat
Functions	Gas, Gasoline, and Oil Engines
Logarithms	Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)
	Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)

Refrigeration—M S; H R

Arithmetic	Heat
Mensuration	Steam and Steam Engines
Elementary Algebra and Trigonometric	Principles of Refrigeration
Functions	Ice-Making and Refrigeration
Logarithms	Machinery
Elementary Mechanics	Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)
Pneumatics	Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)

Full Mining—N A; F

Arithmetic	Prospecting for Coal
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Shafts, Slopes, and Drifts
Formulas	Methods of Working Coal Mines
Geometry and Trigonometry	Mechanics
Mine Surveying and Mapping, 5 P.	Steam and Steam Boilers
Gases Met With in Mines	Steam Engines
Mine Ventilation	Air and Air Compression
Economic Geology of Coal	Hydromechanics and Pumping
